

DAY 3 TUESDAY, JULY 20, 2010 LITTLE TRAVERSE WHEELWAY
 BELLAIRE TO HARBOR SPRINGS, MICHIGAN 53.8 MILES

Today, on our longest day of the tour, your training pays off as the first half of Day 3 is likely the hilliest ride of the entire week. Big climbs but some nice downhills too. Early in the day you can pick up a snack as we pass through the small towns of Central Lake and Ellsworth. Once we wind through the resort town of Charlevoix, The Little Traverse Wheelway, built on or near an old rail corridor, takes us on an easy ride all the way to Harbor Springs. The nasty little gap in the trail outside Petoskey, where we used to ride on US 31, is gone. This recently completed section of the Little Traverse Wheelway is probably the most scenic of the entire trail. The people in Petoskey do not want us painting directional markings on the trail so please refer to official trail signage and this map book as needed. Besides Charlevoix there are plenty of places in Petoskey and Harbor Springs to pick up some lunch. One final climb brings us to our final overnight stop in Harbor Springs. If you want to avoid the big hill up to the school and don't mind missing the ride along the waterfront in Harbor Springs you can stay on the trail and it will take you in the back way. Evening activities in Harbor Spings include yoga, the nightly rider meeting and a 50/50 raffle. MTGA Director, Nancy Krupiarz, will also present her annual Michigan Trails Update.
